Q: Django - Accessing a field of a model instance which is also a model field from within a form I have a model which contains another model, and this other model contains a field of this model. I am trying to make a form which shows the field of the first model from within the second model. class Mymodel(models.Model): myfield = models.ForeignKey(SecondModel) class SecondModel(models.Model): field_of_Mymodel = models.ForeignKey('Mymodel') What I've tried so far is just using the field_of_Mymodel name in the form, but this doesn't work. class SecondModelForm(forms.ModelForm): def __init__(self, *args, kwargs): super(SecondModelForm, self).__init__(*args,

In this revised renewal, we propose to determine the relative roles of 1,25(OH)2D and FGF23 in causing bone
